VOL 26. BLOOMSBURG PA., FRIDAY, JUNE 12, 1891. NO. 24

There will be a festival in the grove at St. James church on the afternoon and evening of Saturday June 13.

Mr. Orlando Hess of Benton has been spending a few weeks in West Virginia. He returned home Monday.

J. L. Moyer's brick house has been raised fourteen inches from the foundation. The work was done by Jenkins of Plainfield N. J.

John Jones (colored) another one of the party who assaulted the Andy girl at Danville, was brought to Bloomsburg and lodged in jail last week.

The trial of Ellis Young, who is accused of the murder of Lieutenant Robinson, is set down for trial in Luzerne County on Monday June 22.

The members of the Reformed church will hold a large festival in the basement of their church and lawn. Friday and Saturday evenings, June 19th and 20th.

All who have heard the "Cradle Songs of Many Nations" are delighted with them. Be sure and hear them on the evening of June 25th, by the Young People's Guild in Miss Armstrong's school room. Admission 35 cts.

Rev. Lenker, Western Secretary of Church Extension, of the General Synod of the Lutheran church filled Rev. P. A. Heilman's pulpit last Sunday morning. He gave a brief report of the work he is doing in the far west.

The Methodists of the several schools on Jerseytown charge will hold a Sunday School Convention at Eyers Grove on Saturday, 6th. First session begins at 2 p. m. and second at 7:30 p. m. All Sunday school workers are cordially invited to be present and help make the work a success.

The Episcopal Church never looked more beautiful than on the occasion of the Duy—Kester wedding last week Thursday evening. The chancel was filled with white and green decorations being placed there by the young ladies of the church without the knowledge of the bridal party.

Mrs. M. E. Ent will have placed in front of her building on Main street in a few days, some beautiful Ohio sand stone. The stone are now along the railroad, and being dressed by T. L. Gunton, prepatory to laying them. It will be as fine a pavement as any in town.

The Boyer tax bill has been signed by the Governor and has now became a law. If its provisions are carried out the amount appropriated for public schools will be increased from $2,000,000 to $5,000,000. Bloomsburg School District will therefore get about $ 4,000. With this income we should have nine months of school each year.

The Senior class of the Normat School numbering 82 being the largest in the history of the school passed a very successful examination before the faculty last week. There was more uniformity in their work than has been in any of its precdscessor.

The junior class numbering 106 also passed their final examinattons and have been admitted as seniors for the next year.

One of the laws passed by the recent legislature is that of Saturday half holiday, between June 15th and September 15th. The banks will probably be the only parties that will avail themselves of the law. Notes falling due on Saturday must be paid before noon, as banks will not be obliged to keep open until three o'clock, as upon other days.

The State Examining Committee, consisting of Superintendent Waller, Dr. E. O. Lyte of Millersville, Supt. Harpel of Shamokin and Supt. Johnson of Columbia, finished their examination of the seniors Wednesday evening. No announcement has yet been made of the result. The entire Committee went to Harrisburg Wednesday evening where the examination papers will all be examined.

The services at the Lutheran church last Sunday evening were in charge of Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society. Mrs. Grant Herring gave a lengthy report of her recent visit as delegate to the General Convention at Canton, Ohio. The report was listened to with much pleasure and profit. The secretary and treasurer gave their reports which showed the society in excellent condition,

The exercises were concluded with an address from Mrs P. A. Heilman upon the work done in the far west as she observed it, while in that section.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

ITS LOCAL HISTORY.

THE NEW CHURCH.

FAREWELL SERVICE AT THE OLD CHURCH.

On Sunday last the Presbyterian Congregation of Bloomsburg met in their old church building for their last regular service. Forty three years ago, in September 1848 it was dedicated, and divine service has been maintained within it until the present time. Though to day, seemingly antiquated and contracted, it was, when erected regarded as very handsome and convenient. The plan was furnished by M. L. Brun of Philadelphia an architect of note in his day, and built at a cost of over $3000. The lowering of the grade of the street in front, has unduly elevated it, so that the steps, then graceful, and surmounted by an imposing pillared portico, now appear disproportioned. Indeed the church when built was as far in advance of any other in the vicinity, as is now the new one. It was the pride of the pastor through whose unwearied efforts and sacrifices it was erected, and the cherished Sanctuary of the worshippers.

Hallowed memories cluster around it, as the mind pictures the congregation which so gladly entered and worshiped within its walls. It was to many, both God's earthly Court and the gate way to Heaven. Forty three years have removed most of the fathers and mothers of that day, and their children, now the fathers and mothers occupy their places in the new Sanctuary. The building has become too small for the congregation, for which the new one will furnish increased accommodation. This thought was suggested in the text from which the sermon preached on last Sunday morning. It was found in Isaiah 49:20, and pictured a scene in the experience of the church in the prophesied gospel dispensation. "The children which thou shalt have, after thou hast lost the other, shalt say again in thine ears, the place is too strait for me: give place to me, that I may dwell."

There is something deeply impressive in the closing services of an old church. If the song of "The Old Oaken Bucket," touches the heart of scattered grown-up children with reminiscences of childhood scenes and lost loved ones, no less do the children of the church associate golden experiences of divine goodness and mercy with the hallowed old walls. How many were there dedicated to God in baptism and afterwards publicly professed their faith in Christ? How baptismal scenes, marriage ceremonies and funeral obsequies mingle their associations with the sacred spot! How many of those who there joined in celebrating the Sacramental Supper, have since taken their places at the marriage Supper of the Lamb! Having seen the power and glory of God, in the veiled Shekinah of the earthly sanctuary, they have been admitted into his immediate presence to behold the unveiled glory of the King in his beauty.

The exercises of last Sunday night partook somewhat of the character of a Memoral Service. Dr. Waller, under whose pastorate it was erected, who preached in it during the remainder of his active ministry, and who has since worshiped in it as a member of the congregation, gave an address, in which he told of the church's early history. As he told of the old church building on Third street superseded by this one, of the members who then encouraged and aided in the work, some of whose names are only a memory, and of others still represented in their children, the congregation realized more fully, that though God removes the workers the work goes on. "The fathers where are they? and the prophets do they live forever." Many tear dimmed eyes told how pleasure and pain mingled together in bidding farewell to the "Old Sanctuary."

As a brief historical sketch will not be out of place at this time, we print the following from the "History of Columbia County."

"The Presbyterian element of the population of Bloomsburg and vicinity was originally connected with the old Fishingcreek church, the organization of which is still sustained in Centre township. This church is mentioned in 1789 in the records of Carlisle Presbytery. Reverends Henry, Bryson, Porter, Judd, Condit, Andrews and Gray, were successively sent to missionate in the valley of the Susquehanna, and undoubtedly numbered among their hearers, at the Fishing creek church, the McClures, Kinneys, Sloans, Pursels, and others, who afterward formed the membership of the Bloomsburg church. Reverend Asa Dunham, a native of Middlesex county, N. J., and a revolutionary soldier, became a resident of the Fishing creek valley in 1798, and preached in the barn of Elias Furman, between Bloomsburg and Espy. The fact that public worship was thus held in the vicinity of the incipient village of Bloomsburg, and also at the Briarcreek church, would seem to indicate an increasing number of Preshyterians at the former place. Their religious privileges were convenient only through the courtesy of the German people or the Episcopalians, while their growing numbers emphasized the importance of a separate organization, and the building of a house of worship for their own use. Accordingly the Presbyterian church of Bloomsburg was organized in 1817, with James McClure, Paul Leidy and Peter Pursel, as elders. The congregation united with the Briarcreek and Shamokin churches, in extending a call to the Reverend Samuel Henderson, whose services should be divided equally among them. This call was made December 6, 1817, but the Bloomsburg organization had already taken measures to provide their quota for his support. His energy was further manifested in the purchase of a lot at the west end of Third street for a cemetery and building site. It was decided that the church building should be two stories high, with galleries on three sides, and that its dimensions should be thirty-six and forty feet. After the foundation had been laid, a controversy arose as to whether the entrance should be from the rear, agreeably to the custom of the neighborhood, or from that end of the building next the street. The more modern ideas prevailed, although a change was required in the work already done. While this structure was in course of erection the trustees united in an agreement with the officers of the Episcopal church for the use of their church building. An instance in which the announcements of the two clergymen conflicted has thus been described:

"When a communion service had been appointed, and the Rev. J. B. Patterson had been published to preach on Saturday preceding, the Rev. Caleb Hopkins, the founder and rector of the church, wrote a note to Mr. Henderson, announcing that he wished to occupy the pulpit on that afternoon. The notice reached Mr. Henderson, on his coming to town, to meet his congregation, who were already gathering. Finding Mr. Hopkins in the little pulpit, which would hold but one, he ascended the steps and asked permission to publish a notice, which being courteously granted, he announced that those who wished to hear the Rev. Mr. Patterson, would repair to the German church on the hill. The whole congregation left. As the last were passing out Mr. Hopkins said, depressingly, 'Well, if ye will go, ye may.'"

Mr. Henderson continued to preach at Bloomsburg until 1824, when he was succeeded by the Reverend John Niblock. Reverends James Lewers, —— Crosby, Mathew B. Patterson, Robert Bryson, and —— Irvin successively assumed the pastorate, but found no encouragement to remain any length of time. The Reverend John P. Hudson's connection with the Bloomsburg congregation began in December, 1832, when he became stated supply, and subsequently regular pastor, until his resignation in 1838. The vacancy that ensued was temporarly supplied by Reverends—— Tobey and Daniel M. Barber, but the latter had established a flourishing boarding school for young ladies at Washingtonville and declined to relinquish it although importuned to do so. At the instance of Reverend D. M. Halliday, of Danville, D. J. Waller, a licentiate of New Castle Presbytery, had preached once in Bloomsburg, in the summer of 1837; he was now invited to make his residence in town, and take charge of a pastorate embracing the whole of Columbia county, with several preaching points beyond its limits. The call was tendered and accepted in the autumn of 1838, and May 1, 1839, the pastor was ordained and installed. The pastoral relations thus established continued through thirty-three years. What was then included in one pastorate has now been formed into five or six. Mr. Waller's reminiscences would fill a volume. His house was the recognized stopping place for traveling clergymen, book agents, agents of benevolent societies, and other travelers of a miscellaneous character. He relates that that hospitality attained such proportions that occasionally more guests and conveyances left his house in the morning than left the hotel; and when the village landlord erected a new sign-board in hopes of thus emphasizing his claims upon the traveling public, some wags procured the old one and elevated it in a conspicuous place before the pastor's dwelling.

Upon the removal of the seat of justice to Bloomsburg in 1845, the future prospects of the town were supposed to be improved to such an extent as to require the erection of a new church building. The question of location was one of importance, and the different views entertained were widely different, and, unfortunately, equally pronounced. That the energies of the congregation might be concentrated on the erection of the church and thus diverted from the consideration of this delicate subject, the pastor secured financial aid from friends abroad and purchased the lot on Market street which is the present location of the church edifice. The plans for its erection were prepared by Napoleon Le Brun. Its cost was about three thousand dollars. The last sermon in the Third street church building was delivered on the last Sabbath of August, 1848. The new structure was dedicated on the following Wednesday, on which occasion the pastor was assisted by the Reverend W. R. Smith.

Mr. Waller tendered his resignation in 1871; it was accepted and the relation terminated by the Presbytery. After an interval of one year, the Reverend Stuart Mitchell, D. D., was installed as his successor, October 17, 1872. A parsonage was erected in 1880 on the lot formerly occupied by the old church. Dr. Mitchell resigned in 1888 and Rev. I. M. Patterson was chosen pastor, and is still in charge.

THE NEW CHURCH.

The new church, of which the cut on this page gives an idea as to outline, cost complete $55,000. It is built of Hummelstown brown stone, and its dimensions are 76 feet wide and 84 feet long. The spire is of slate and is 130 feet high. The first floor is divided into several parts. The church proper is finished and furnished in antique oak, and handsomely frescoed. The ceiling at the highest point is 55 feet. There are two entrances; one from the street and one from the porte cochere. At the south end of the room are two fireplaces. The floor is covered with Brussels carpet. The chandeliers are large and handsome, and they are arranged for both gas and electric light. The organ is a fine instrument, located over the pulpit. It is operated by water power, and has twenty-two stops, as follows: On the great organ are the trumpet, Fifteenth, Twelfth, Octave, Bourdon Bass, Bourdon Treble, Melodia, Dulciana, and Open Diapason. On the swell organ are the Harmonica, Flute, Open Diapason, Stop Diapason, Viola, Violina, Oboe, Bassoon, Tremolo, Bourdon pedal, Open Diapson pedal. The mechanical stops are the swell to pedal, great to pedal, and swell to great. Miss Maude Runyan is the organist.

On the first floor are also the Ladies' Parlor, Lecture Room, and Pastor's Study. Above these is the Sunday School room. In the basement is a kitchen with a dumb waiter to second floor.

The windows are all of stained glass. The large window in the south, end represents Jesus and his two disciples, with these words underneath, "Jesus Himself drew near and went with them." Below is this inscription," To the Glory of God and in memory of William and Elizabeth McKelvey." The first window at the left of the pulpit contains the names of all the Elders of the church from its organization up to the present time.

The second window contains the names of William and Betsy Robinson; the third was contributed by Mrs. W. Neal's Young Men's Bible class and the fourth is in memory of Mrs. Minerva B Moyer, put in by her sons.

At the right, the first window contains the names of all the ministers and pastors of the church; the second contains the names of Robert and Sarah Cathcart, the third is in memory of John and Mary Brugler, and the fourth has no name on it.

The large window on the east side in the pastor's study has the following names on it: Mrs. Margaret Melick, Mrs Susan McClure, Mrs. Hannah Armstrong, Mrs. Rebecca Hower, Miss R. A. Rupert, Miss Harriet Rupert, Mrs. Mary A. Ramsey, Mrs. Lavina Miller.

The architect of the building was Charles W. Bolton of Philadelphia, and the builder was Mathias Geist of Pottstown.

The present officers of the Church are as follows: Pastor, Rev. I. M. Patterson, Board of Trustees, William Neal, President, H. V. White, Secretary and Treasurer, C. A. Moyer, S. A Wilson, L. Runyan. The Elders are William Neal, C. A. Moyer, Dr. J. Schuyler, and C. G. Barkley.

AT PROCTOR INN.

On Monday of last week the Proctor Inn at Jamison City was opened to the public by the new proprietor. Quigley & Co. On Saturday a party of about sixty ladies and gentlemen went up on the B. & S., and spent the day at the Inn. Through the courtesy of the railroad officials a special car was provided, and everything possible was done by the officers and employes to make the excursionists comfortable. Among those who took in the trip were Judge and Mrs. Ikeler, Col. Jameson and family, W. R. Tubbs and wife, P. S. Harman and wife, Dr. Willits and wife, A. L. Fritz and wife, W. S. Moyer and wife, W. H. Snyder and wife, Lloyd Paxton and Mr. Glisson, Col. Freeze aud wife, Mrs. Ent, Miss Annie Ent, Mrs. G. W. Bertsch, M. Q. White and wife, C. H. Campbell and wife, J. L. Moyer and wife, Less Alexander and wife, Judge M. Millard, S. H. Harman, Miss Williams, Miss Martha Clark, Miss Frick, L. T. Sharpless, D. F. Weiss, Vice President Wigfall who had special charge of the party, J. C. Brown, Geo. E. Elwell, and others.

Some of the party spent the day in fishing, some walked up to the old Cole cottage, the famous resort of former years, while others visited the Hub factory, the Tannery, the saw mill and other points of interest.

At noon an excellent dinner was served at the Inn, and all enjoyed it greatly, for it was eaten with keen appetites.

The afternoon was passed in various ways, quoit pitching, music and dancing being among the amusements. Mr. Glisson entertained the party by singing some very pretty songs. At 5 o'clock the train started for home, and all came away highly pleased with the Inn, and with the entire programme of the day. The party was gotten up in haste, and no invitations were extended to any one. A limited number of tickets were procured, and sold to any who asked for them, up to the limit, and after that it was hard to get them.

Excursions to Jamison City and a dinner at Proctor Inn are going to be quite the thing this summer. Numerous parties are already talking of going up to spend Sundays. No pleasanter resort can be found.

The firm of Howe, Williams & Co. as cigar manufacturers has been dissolved. F. C. Williams has bought the interest of Mr. Howe, and will continue the manufacture of cigars at the same place. Parties handling cigars should call and get manufacturers' prices.

There is much illegal fishing done in the streams near Bloomsburg. By the late act, the sheriff, Deputy sheriff, Constable, policeman, or any special officer of this Commonwealth may arrest any guilty party and bring them before any justice of the peace or other legally constituted authority. A penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars is imposed for the offense; one-half of which goes to the officer making the arrest, the other half to the treasurer of the County. The law should be enforced.

Bears at Mountain Grove

One evening last week as Freeman Beninger was returning to his home in Scotch Valley from a visit to his brother at Mountain Grove, he came upon a couple of cubs about one-third grown. They were playing in a lane a short distance below the camp-ground, and he got within ten yards of them. After watching them for a short time he clapped his hands and in about a York minute they were scooting for the woods as though the old nick was after them.

The Mountain Grove Campmeeting Association can now add these to the other natural or native attractions of their grounds.—Catawissa Item.

WHY IS IT?

ED. COLUMBIAN:

During a recent campaign circulars were sent abroad over the County purporting to show the financial condition of the County under the supervision of the old board of Commissioners, which if I mistake not showed by the figures thereon that the assets above liabilities were about $12,000. Was it an election scheme gotten up to help the old board to sit in honor on high places?. But in looking over the columns of your paper I find a petition to the Hon. judges of the Court asking that body for the right to borrow $20,000. What the people want to know is, what became of the excess money that borrowing should come so soon. In all probability it would be well for that clerk to compare his last statement with the circulars sent abroad a year ago and thus explain to the tax payers in general where the deficiency comes in so that there may be a chance for the lowering the valuation of property more than to enhance the same and eat it up in taxes.

IN CANADA.

'M AT present existing under a monikal form of Gov'ment, in other words I'm travelin ameng the crowned heds of Canady. They ain't pretty bad people. On the cont'ry, they air exceedin' good people.

Troo, they air deprived of many blessins. They don't enjoy, for instans, the priceless boon of a war. They haven't any American Egil to onchain, and they hain't got a Fourth of July to their backs.

Altho' this is a monikal form of Gov'ment, I am onable to perceeve much moniky. I tried to git a piece in Toronto, but failed to succeed.

Mrs. VICTORIA, who is Queen of England and has all the luxuries of the markets, incloodin game in its season, don't bother herself much about Canady, but lets her do 'bout as she's mighter. She, however, gin'rally keeps her supplied with a lord, who's called a Gov'ner Gin'ral. Sometimes the politicians of Canady make it lively for this lord—for Canady has politicians, and I expect they don't differ from our politicians, some of 'em bein' gifted and talented liars, no doubt.

The present Gov'ner Gin'ral of Canady is Lord MONK. I saw him review some volunteers at Montreal. He was accompanied by some other lords and dukes and generals and those sort of things. He rode a little bay horse, and his close wasn't any better than mine. You'll always notiss, by the way, that the higher up in the world a man is, the less good harness he puts on. Hence Gin'ral HALLECK walks the streets in plain citizen's dress, while the second lieutenant of a volunteer regiment piles all the brass things he can find onto his back, and drags a forty-pound sword after him.

MONK has been in the lord bisniss some time, and I understand it pays, tho' I don't know what a lord's wages is. The wages of sin is death and postage stamps. But this has nothing to do with MONK.

One of Lord MONK's daughters rode with him on the field. She has golden hair, a kind, good face, and wore a red hat. I should be very happy to have her pay me and my family a visit at Baldinsville. Come and bring your knittin', Miss MONK. Mrs. WARD will do the fair thing by you. She makes the best slap-jacks in America. As a slap-jackist, she has no ekal. She wears the Belt.

What the review was all about, I don't know. I haven't a gigantic intelleck, which can grasp great questions at onct. I am not a WEBSTER or a SEYMOUR. I am not a WASHINGTON or a OLD ABE. Fur from it. I am not as gifted a man as HENRY WARD BEECHER. Even the congregation of Plymouth Meetin'-House in Brooklyn will admit that. Yes, I should think so. But while I don't have the slitest idee as to what the review was fur, I will state that the sojers looked pooty scrumptious in their red and green close.

Come with me, jentle reader, to Quebeck.

Quebeck has seen lively times in a warlike way. The French and Britishers had a set-to there in 1759. JIM WOLFE commanded the latters, and JO. MONTCALM the formers. Both were hunky boys, and fit nobly. But WOLFE was too many measles for MONTCALM, and the French was slew'd. WOLFE and MONTCALM was both killed. In arter years a common monyment was erected by the gen'rous people of Quebeck, aided by a bully Earl named GEORGE DALHOUSIE, to these noble fellows. That was well done.

Durin' the Revolutionary War B. ARNOLD made his way, through dense woods and thick snows, from Maine to Quebeck, which it was one of the hunkiest things ever done in the military line. It would have been better if B. ARNOLD's funeral had come off immeditly on his arrival there.

On the Plains of Abraham there was onct some tall fitin', and ever since then there has been a great demand for the bones of the slew'd on that there occasion. But the real ginooine bones was long ago carried off, and now the boys make a hansum thing by carting the bones of hosses and sheep out there, and sellin' em to intelligent American towerists. Takin a perfessional view of this dodge, I must say that it betrays genius of a lorfty character.

It reminded me of a inspired feet of my own. I used to exhibit a wax figger of HENRY WILKINS, the Boy Murderer. HENRY had, in a moment of inadvertence, killed his Uncle EPHRAM and walked off with the old man's money. Well, this stattoo was lost somehow, and not sposin' it would make any particler difference I substitooted the full grown stattoo of one of my distinguished pirats for the Boy Murderer. One night I exhibited to a poor but honest audience in the town of Stoneham, Maine.

"This, ladies and gentlemen," said I, pointing my umbrella (that weapon which is indispensable to every troo American) to the stattoo, "this is a life-like wax figger of the notorious HENRY WILKINS, who in the dead of night murdered his Uncle EPHRAM in cold blood. A sad warning to all uncles havin' murderers for nephews. When a mere child this HENRY WILKINS was compelled to go to the Sunday-school. He carried no Sunday-school book. The teacher told him to go home and bring one. He went and returned with a comic song-book. A depraved proceedin."

"But," says a man in the audience, "when you was here before your wax figger represented HENRY WILKINS as a boy. Now, HENRY was hung, and yet you show him to us now as a full-grown man! How's that?"

"The figger has growd, sir—it has growd," I said.

I was angry. If it had been in these times I think I should have informed agin him as a traitor to his flag, and had him put in Fort Lafayette.

I say adoo to Quebeck with regret. It is old fogyish, but chock full of interest. Young gentlemen of a romantic turn of mind, who air botherin' their heads as to how they can spend their father's money, had better see Quebeck.

Altogether I like Canady. Good people and lots of pretty girls. I wouldn't mind comin' over here to live in the capacity of a Duke, provided a vacancy occurs, and provided further I could be allowed a few star-spangled banners, a eagle, a boon of liberty, etc.

Don't think I've skedaddled. Not at all. I'm coming home in a week.

Let's have the Union restored as it was, if we can; but if we can't I'm in favor of the Union as it wasn't. But the Union, anyhow.

Gentlemen of the editorial corpse, if you would be happy be virtoous! I who am the emblem of virtoo, tell you so.

ARTEMUS WARD IN RICHMOND.

RICHMOND, VA., May—18 & 65.

RICHMOND.

The old man finds hisself once more in a Sunny climb. I cum here a few days arter the city catterpillertulated.

My naburs seemed surprised & astonisht at this darin' bravery onto the part of a man at my time of life, but our family was never know'd to quale in danger's stormy hour.

My father was a sutler in the Revolootion War. My father once had a intervoo with Gin'ral La Fayette.

He asked La Fayette to lend him five dollars, promisin' to pay him in the Fall; but Lafy said "he couldn't see it in those lamps." Lafy was French, and his knowledge of our langwidge was a little shaky.

Immejutly on my 'rival here I perceeded to the Spootswood House, and callin' to my assistans a young man from our town who writes a good runnin' hand, I put my ortograph on the Register, and handin' my umbrella to a baldheded man behind the counter, who I s'posed was Mr. Spotswood, I said, "Spotsy, how does she run?"

He called a cullud purson, and said:

"Isn't Grant here?" I said. "Perhaps Ulyssis wouldn't mind my turnin' in with him."

"Do you know the Gin'ral?" inquired Mr. Spotswood.

"Wall, no, not 'zaky; but he'll remember me. His brother-in-law's Aunt bought her rye meal of my uncle Levi all one winter. My uncle Levi's rye meal was——"

"Pooh! pooh!" said Spotsy, "don't bother me," and he shuv'd my umbrella onto the floor. Obsarvin' to him not to be so keerless with that wepin, I accompanied the African to my lodgins.

"My brother," I sed, "air you aware that you've bin mancipated? Do you realise how glorus it is to be free? Tell me, my dear brother, does it not seem like some dreams, or do you realise the great fact in all its livin' and holy magnitood?"

He sed he would take some gin.

I was show'd to the cowyard and laid down under a one-mule cart. The hotel was orful crowded, and I was sorry I hadn't gone to the Libby Prison. Tho' I should hav' slept comf'ble enuff if the bedclothes hadn't bin pulled off me durin' the night, by a scoundrul who cum and hitched a mule to the cart and druv it off. I thus lost my cuverin', and my throat feels a little husky this mornin'.

Gineral Hulleck offers me the hospitality of the city, givin' me my choice of hospitals.

He has also very kindly placed at my disposal a small-pox amboolance.

UNION SENTIMENT.

There is raly a great deal of Union sentiment in this city. I see it on ev'ry hand.

I met a man to-day—I am not at liberty to tell his name, but he is a old and influoentooial citizen of Richmond, and sez he, "Why! we've bin fightin' agin the Old Flag! Lor' bless me, how sing'lar!" He then borrer'd five dollars of me and bust into a flood of teers.

Sed another (a man of standin' and formerly a bitter rebuel), "Let us at once stop this effooshun of Blud! The Old Flag is good enuff for me. Sir," he added, "you air from the North! Have you a doughnut or a piece of custard pie about you?"

"I told him no, but I knew a man from Vermont who had just organized a sort of restaurant, where he could go and make a very comfortable breakfast on New England rum and cheese. He borrowed fifty cents of me, and askin' me to send him Wm. Lloyd Garrison's ambrotype as soon as I got home, he walked off.

Said another, "There's bin a tremenduous Union feelin' here from the fust. But we was kept down by a rain of terror. Have you a dagerretype of Wendell Phillips about your person? and will you lend me four dollars for a few days till we air once more a happy and united people?"

Pure Rye Whiskey.

One year ago we had 5000 gallons of Old Rye Whiskey in Bond, which was considered a large stock to carry and sufficient for the trade. The demand, however, for our whiskey became such, that we were compelled to increase the capacity of our distillery, in order to give the whiskey some age before placing it on the market.

We are now making over a barrel a day; having a daily capacity of over 50 gals. and carrying a stock of 11,000 gals. in Bond. We hope to give our patrons the benefit of the age and will sell no whiskey under six months, and from that up to three years. No second hand barrels are used at our Distillery; all our whiskey is bonded in new, clean, charred, barrels, and for purity and quality we defy competition.

We have never distilled a bushel of corn, and we do hereby guarantee ALL our whiskey to be absolutely Pure Rye and doubled on a copper lined still and to any person who will find any drugs or corn in our whiskey as it leaves our Distilllery or Salesroom, we will forfeit $500.00.

TRESSLER ORPHAN HOME, LOYSVILLE.

The Tressler Orphans' Home was organized, and a constitution adopted February 20th 1868. The original building and five acres of ground were purchased for $5000. Since that time thirty-eight acres more have been added. In 1883 an additional wing of three stories was added. 225 children can now be accomodated. The institution belongs to the General Synod of the United States, and is supported by the following district Synods: Franklean, West Pennsylvania, Central Illinois, Northern Illinois, Southern Illinois, Northern Indiana, Nebraska, Kansas, East Ohio, New York and New Jersey, Hartwick, Pittsburg, Miami, Maryland, Olive Branch, Wittenburg, Allegheny, Central Pennsylvania, Susquehanna and East Pennsylvania. Each Synod having twelve ordained ministers is entitled to two trustees, thirty ministers four trustees, sixty or more six trustees. The trustees are divided equally between the lay and clerical members. The trustees of the Susquehanna Synod are Rev. J. A. Koser of Muncy, Rev. A. N. Warner of Northumberland, Dr. J. W. Sheets of Northumberland, and J. K. Bittenbender of Bloomsburg. The trustees meet annually at the home about the first of June and elect their officers for the year. The officers for the present year are Rev. W. H. Dunbar of Lebanon, President: Rev. A. Stewart Hartman, Baltimore, Md., Secretary; Mr. F. C. Fink, Harrisburg, Treasurer. The home is in Perry county, fifteen miles from Newport, and is in direct connection with railroads, a road having been built during the past year between Newport and Loysville. Newport is situated on the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad. The following is a list of the Synods having children at the home, with the number from each Synod: Susquehanna 14; West Pennsylvania 17; Allegheny 9; Central Pennsylvania 16; East Pennsylvania 18; East Ohio 1; Maryland 6; Kansas 2; Pittsburg 3; New York and New Jersey 2; Nebraska 2; making a total of 90. There are also 77 State Soldiers' Orphans, three Perry county children, and two day scholars, this making a total attendance of 172. A superintendent, male attendant, matron, and four instructors, a baker, shoemaker and cook, embrace the management of the home. Children are received at the home at seven years and are dismissed at sixteen years. They are admitted into the home by application to the president or secretary, who furnishes a blank physician's certificate. The questions on the blank must all be truthfully answered and attested by the family physician. The executive committee will then investigate the case of the applicant, and if satisfied of the result will admit them. This precaution is taken in order to prevent the introduction of any disease, and when we state that but a single case of sickness was found in the home during the past year, the reader can know how fully the conditions are complied with. The object of the institution is to provide a home for poor orphan children of the Evangelical Lutheran church; to educate them physically, intellectually, morally and religiously. Among the boys there are three military companies. Company A embracing the larger boys; Company B the intermediate, and Company C. the smallest. These are full companies except the smallest. One-half hour is devoted every day to military drill, when all companies take part in marching, forming crosses, squares, stars and triangles. A major, adjutant major and sergeant major is in command, then each company has a captain, first and second lieutenant and orderly sargeant. The officers are selected by merit and remain in charge during good behavior. The school is divided into four divisions, each of which has a particular line of work; some working upon the farm, others in the bakery, laundry or school building. No one works more than an hour and a half at one thing at a time, this work is varied so as not to become tiresome nor oppressive. The following is a schedule for the day: Rise at 5:45 a. m., prayers at 6:15 a. m., breakfast at 6:30, 1st division detail 7:45, school opens 8:45, second division detail 9:45, school dismission 11:45, dinner 12 m., third division detail 1:15; school at 1:30, fourth division detail at 3:00, school dismission at 4:00, supper at 5:00, evening prayers at 6:45, little ones to bed at 7:00, bed time for older children, 9:00, lights out at 9:50.

The home is under the strictest discipline, the children are happy and all in good health. At present there are more boys at the home than usual, so that no more boys can now be accomodated. There is, however, room for about ten more girls.

During the past year, the ground has been laid out into beautiful lawns, with fine flower beds. The buildings have been repainted outside and inside, new beds and bedding have been furnished, so that everything is clean and the home a delightful place in which to live. When the State Soldiers' Orphans' Commission visited the Home about two months ago, they expressed themselves as elated at the condition of the buildings, its surroundings and the instruction of the children. In their report they stated that the soldiers' orphans received better treatment than at any other school in the State. Some stating that it was the best managed home they had ever seen. It is certainly a pleasure to know that there is an Orphans' Home in the State where the only consideration is the well-fare of the wards in charge. The Executive committee, who labor for the success of the institution, receive no compensation. They give their time, in order to maintain a place where the poor of the church may find a welcome home for their children.

The Pennsylvania Railroad's New Summer Excursion-Route Book.

The Pennsylvania Railroad's Summer Excursion-Route Book for the season of 1891, just from the press, is undoubtedly one of the most elaborate reference compendiums issued by any railroad company in the world. The company this year has used new illustrations, printed on a very high grade of paper, while a decided departure from the old cover heretofore binding the work is seen in the new one, which is beautifully illuminated, and would do credit to the brush of a Rossi, so cleverly French is it in every detail. The new map embraces a territory from Canada to the Carolina, and from the British possession of New Brunswick to beyond the Great Inland Lakes. When comparison is made with this volume of 272 pages, 100 illustrations, and over 1500 routes, a book which enters its year of manhood the first day of June, 1891, and the tiny pamphlet of 24 pages and 63 routes issued twenty-one years ago by the Pennsylvania Railroad, and considered at that time a marvelous departure in railroad advertising, the growth is hardly credible.

POULTRY NOTES.

No. 18.

Hens if properly kept are a source of profit and comfort to the owner.

They require a variety of food and get very tired of one kind, and will not do as well as if fed a variety.

The hen will cease laying when improperly fed or when in a diseased condition. Keep your flock healthy if you desire the best result. A few fowls in a pen are more apt to be healthy, and will do better than if crowded, as they are easier taken care of.

The nests must be renewed occasionly and kept clean, straw is better than hay, tobacco stems covered with straw is an excellent prevention of insect breeding, especially where they are setting.

P. S. review.

The best food for eggs is to give chopped clover and meat mixed, and scalked, with a little ground grain sprinklsd over it, in the morning, feed warm, give nothing more until an hour before the roosting time, then scaatter wheat in litter of some kind, and make the hens scratch for it, give all the milk they will drink. The hens must be kept warm in order to lay, feed corn only twice a week.—Poultry Nation.

W. B. GERMAN.

A Good Old Story.

As strange as it may seem, there was once a Judge of the Court of San Bernardino County, California who disapproved of liquor and wine drinking, and lost no opportunity in sternly holding up to public gaze all persons who had committed crimes or misdemeanors while under the influence of strong drink. There lived in the town at that time this exemplary man sat upon the bench a good many men who looked upon the wine when it was good and red, and who often frolicked with Barleycorn until they got the worst of it. There was one young man in particular, who belonged to a good family, who was wont to paint San Bernardino scarlet when funds were not to low. This youth entered his Honor's study one day and exclaimed:

"Judge, I'm going to swear off, and I want you to——"

"All right, all right; I know—I know. I'll make out the papers and fix you up. It won't take ten minutes."

And tickled nearly to death, the Judge made out a satisfactory document, the young man quickly subscribed to it, and then swore never again to drink anything intoxicating. Then he asked:—

"How much do I owe you, Judge?"

"Owe me? Heavens and earth, young man, you don't owe me anything. Confound it! I owe you! You have made me supremely happy! I can never repay you!"

"Now, see here, Judge, that won't do. I have taken up your time, and I'm going to pay you!"

"Never, never, never! My dear boy. I will never take a cent."

"But you must."

"Never!"

"Well, you are the best man I ever saw."

"That's all right."

"And I am determined to demonstrate my thankfulness in some way."

"No, no, no!"

"Yes, yes, yes! I'll tell you what we'll do, Judge."

"What?"

"Let's go and have a drink!"

Everybody Knows.

That at this season the blood is filled with impurities, the accumulation of months of close confinement in poorly ventilated stores, workshops and tenements. All these impurities and every trace of scrofula, salt rheum, or other diseases may be expelled by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier ever produced. It is the only medicine of which "100 doses one dolloar" is true.

Scrofula and Salt Rheum

The heritage of which every human being is almost as certain as he is of air, sunlight and breath, is Scrofula Humor. Far away in the realms of history we catch glimpses of what a curse upon the people this all-prevalent contamination made itself. Poor diet and insufficient food, ill ventillation, filth and dampness, all assist the slumbering germs of Scrofula to overpower the vitality of the body and run riot in the system. The blood in its process of renewing the waste cannot expel any inherited taint of weakness or impurity. It can only be removed by the action of some purifying medicinal agency, which assisted by nutritious food, well digested and assimilated into blood, gradually insures the possession of sound health. Such a renovating remedy has Brown's Sarsaparilla proved itself to be, whether this taint has given rise to Scrofula, Salt Rheum Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Liver Complaints, or Kidney Diseases, which are the most frequent manifestations of its presence, all have readily yielded to the clean and purifying action of Brown's Sarsaparilla.

Cured by the Use of

of Scrofula, cured by Brown's Sarsaparilla, has excited the people living in and around the town of Lee, Me. Mr. Averill writes us as follows: "My son has now taken fourteen bottles of Brown's Sarsaparilla, and I am sure it has completed a cure. His case was the worst I ever saw. His face was covered with what seemed to be scales or scabs, and the itching was so intolerable that he tossed about in agony through many a sleepless night. He commenced some weeks ago to use Brown's Sarsaparilla in connection with the salve you sent to allay the irritation, and now he is so far recovered that we consider his complete cure as certain." Mr. J. W. Burke of Lee, chairman of Penobscot Co. Commissioners, says: "It is wonderful what Brown's Sarsaparilla has done for young Averill." In this case Brown's Sarsaparilla threw open the bowels and pores of the skin, at the same time entering the blood, beginning a vigorous warfare on the impure matter found there, and which was a constant source of supply for the scrofulous humor on the outside. In time this was expelled from the system, and only pure matter entered the blood.

SALT RHEUM.

On Davis Street, in Bangor, resides Mrs. Edwin Wiley, whose daughter was badly afflicted with Salt Rheum. At times her face and hands would be covered with blotches. So intense was the itching sensation that applications of salt were made to destroy it. For a long time no relief could be obtained. One day some one suggested Brown's Sarsaparilla, and a bottle was purchased. Later Mrs. Wiley brought her daughter to the establishment of Mr. Ara Warren where Brown's Sarsaparilla is made. The face that a short time previous was covered with blotches, burning and itching, presented as fair and smooth an appearance as that of any young lady. LESS THAN ONE BOTTLE WAS USED.

A REAL LUXURY!

Looking out over the many homes of this country, we see thousands of women wearing away their lives in household drudgery that might be materially lessened by the use of a few cakes of SAPOLIO. If an hour is saved each time a cake is used, if one less wrinkle gathers upon the face because the toil is lightened, she must be a foolish woman who would hesitate to make the experiment, and he a churlish husband who would grudge the few cents which it costs.

If your grocer sends you anything in place of SAPOLIO, send it back and insist upon having just what you ordered. SAPOLIO always gives satisfaction. On floors, tables, and painted work it acts like a charm. For scouring pots, pans, and metals it has no equal. Everything shines after it, and even the children delight in using it in their attempts to help around the house.

SENATOR HERRING'S SPEECH.

The following is the speech in full of Hon. Grant Herring, in reference to issuing the Commissions to the appointees made by Governor Beaver:

Mr. HERRING.—Mr. President, more than five days have elapsed since the Governor sent in a list of names for appointment, I desire to make a motion at this time that the Senate go into executive session for the purpose of considering the nominations sent in on Wednesday last and to say a few words why, in my opinion at least, this motion should be carried.

Mr. MONAGHAN.—Mr. President, I second that motion.

Mr. HERRING.—Mr. President, notwithstanding the fact that war was declared on the same question on the ninth of April last, we are again tempted to its discussion. Since that time it has occurred to us that some very important phases of the question were lost sight of in the heat and passion of that first day's struggle, but now that the smoke of battle has cleared away and we have had a month's time for deliberation it does occur to us that these fighting gentlemen on the other side of the chamber should listen to the voice of reason and turn aside from their evil ways. We have a few suggestions to offer in hope that the law may step in and decide the "late unpleasantness." If, however, we fail in this then we have only to say that we have prepared ourselves for a second encounter.

In discussing the question it is our desire to do it in no mean spirit of malignity or vituperation, but to argue the issues raised from a purely legal standpoint. Railing accusation would ill become the occasion. If we shall not be able to convince our brethren of the error of their ways by the force of reason and logic we can hope to accomplish it in no other way. It may not be amiss at this time to rehearse briefly the facts out of which this dispute has arisen, for up to this point we are convinced that a misapprehension exists both as to the law and the facts. It seems on the third day of February, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, the late Governor Beaver commissioned William H. Egle to be State Librarian from the first Monday in February to the end of the present session of the Senate. By virtue of that commission now in his possession Dr. Egle is the present incumbent of that office. On the fourth day of February, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, a commission of like tenor and effect was issued to Dr D. J. Waller, Jr., as Superintendent of Public Instruction, dating from the first day of March, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, to the end of the present session of the Senate. On the first day of November, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, a commission of like limitation issued to William G. Martin as Factory Inspector, by virtue of which Mr. Martin is now inspecting the factories of the State. It should be remembered at this time that these vacancies in the several offices named were filled by the Governor under and by virtue of the authority contained in that clause of the Constitution which provides that "the Governor shall have power to fill vacancies that may happen in offices to which he may appoint, during the recess of the Senate, granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session." Matters rested in this shape until this Senate convened in January last. It was then that Governor Beaver nominated to this body for advice and consent, these several gentlemen named, to the respective offices which they now hold, for the full terms prescribed by law.

Action on these nominations was postponed by the Senate until the term of office of Governor Beaver had expired and his successor had been inaugurated. On the twentieth of January last, these nominations were taken up by this body, advised upon and unanimous consent given upon a call of the yeas and nays agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution. At this point I would have the Senate bear in mind that these nominations were not the nominations of any particular man, but of the Governor of the Commonwealth, and that in the process of appointment of these gentlemen to office, two distinct steps have been taken; first, their nomination to the Senate by the Governor and second, the advice of the Senate and its unanimous consent to their appointment. But one step more remains to be taken before these nominations can be regarded as complete, namely, the signature of the Governor to a commission. By this time the Senators will see the drift of argument which is this: In the process of Constitutional appointment to office three distinct steps are absolutely necessary: first, the nomination by the Governor to the Senate; second the advice of the Senate and its consent expressed; third the signature of the Governor to a commission. Lacking any one of these three essentials, the appointment is made and the sole power of appointment being in the Governor, he is at liberty to withhold the last essential, even after the other two have been complied with, and until all these steps have been taken it cannot be said that the appointment has been made. The power of the Senate is merely a restraining power, the power to prevent an appointment, but in no sense the power to make one.

Now as an authority upon that question, let me read briefly from Buckalew on the Constitution, page one hundred and ten: "The check upon the appointing power placed in the hands of Senators does not render the Senate primarily responsible for the appointment; that responsibility rests upon the Governor, for power to select an appointee is exclusively his and the ultimate appointment made and evinced by the issuing of a commission is also his and his alone. The Senate cannot propose any one for selection to office by the Governor." Now special attention is directed to this: "Nor even constrain the Governor to appoint a person he may have named to them for their advice and consent and to whose proposed appointment they may have consented; in short they have the power to prevent appointments which they may consider objectionable, but have not the power to cause any appointment whatever to be made."

But Mr. President we have authority in support of our position even more eminent than that of one of the fathers of the Constitution. The Great Marshal, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, than whom our Supreme bench has never been graced by one more eminent or better learned in law, in delivering the opinion of the court in case of Marbury vs. Madison, reported in 1st Cranch, 155, uses this language: "This is an appointment made by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and is evidenced by no act but the commission itself."

Just here it should be remarked that the power of the President to appoint to office under the Constitution of the United States is exactly co-extensive with that of the Governor under the Constitution of Pennsylvania, the one acting under the Constitution of the United States and the other under the Constitution of Pennsylvania, which in that particular is identical. He continues: "In such a case, therefore, the commission and the appointment seem inseparable, it being almost impossible to show an appointment otherwise than by proving the existence of a commission. * * * The appointment being the sole act of the President, must be completely evinced when it is shown that he has done everything to be performed by him. * * * Should the commission, instead of being the evidence of an appointment, even be considered as constituting the appointment itself, still it would be made when the last act to be done by the President was performed, or at furthest when the commission was complete"

"The last act to be done by the President is the signature of the commission. He has then acted upon the advice and consent of the Senate to his own nomination. The time for deliberation has then passed. He has decided. His judgment on the advice and consent of the Senate concurring with his nomination has been made and the officer is appointed. This appointment is evidenced by an open, unequivocal act, and being the last act required from the person making it necessarily excludes the idea of its being so far as respects the appointment, an inchoate and incomplete transaction." Now I desire special attention be paid to this part of the opinion: "Some point of time must be taken when the power of the executive over an officer not removable at his will must cease. That point of time must be when the constitutional power of appointment has been exercised. And this power has been exercised when the last act required from the person possessing the power has been performed. This last act is the signature of the commission. * * * It is therefore the opinion of the court that when a commission has been signed by the President then the appointment is made. * * * The discretion of the executive is to be exercised until the appointment has been made."

Now let me call your attention to the famous protest of General Jackson in one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four and you will see that the same doctrine is carried out there. "It is therefore not only right of the President but the Constitution makes it his duty to nominate and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint all officers, etc. The executive power vested in the Senate is neither that of nominating or appointing. It is merely a check upon the executive power of appointment. If the individuals are proposed for appointment by the President, by them deemed incompetent or unworthy, they may withhold their consent and the appointment cannot be made."

They check the action of the Executive but cannot in relation to these various subjects act themselves nor direct him. Selections are still made by the President; and the negative given to the Senate without diminishing his responsibilities, furnishes an additional guarantee to the country that the subordinate executive as well as the judicial offices shall be filled with worthy and competent men. The whole executive power being vested in the President, who is responsible for its exercise it is a necessary consequence that he should have a right to employ agents of his own choice to aid him in the performance of his duties and to discharge them when he is no longer willing to be responsible for their acts."

The courageous answer of Ex-President Cleveland to the insolent demand of the Senate in one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six for papers, etc., is still fresh in the minds of all of us.

Among other things he said:

"I am not responsible to the Senate and am unwilling to submit my actions and official conduct to them for judgment. And the threat proposed in the resolution now before the Senate, that no confirmations will be made unless the demand of that body be complied with is not sufficient to discourage or deter me from following in the way, which I am convinced, leads to better government for the people."

It may be sufficient to remark here in passing that as a fact in history it is recorded that the Edmund's resolution fell by the wayside, while the President pursued the even tenor of his way and "to turn the rascals out."

Now, Mr. President, in the light of Marbury vs. Madison, which doctrine we may say has since been reaffirmed by this same court, there can be no good reason for this most unwarranted intermeddling on the part of the Senate with duties belonging exclusively to the Executive. On what grounds, pray tell me, is this most extraordinary conduct defended? Is it to go out before the people in this Commonwealth that Republicans in this body are so blind to reason and deaf to entreaty that they will persist in a course in defiance of the law? I submit to the sober judgment of all present has not the Senate exhausted its powers in regard to the nominations. The sole power delegated to them by the Constitution was that of advice and consent. That consent they have expressed by a unanimous vote.

What more, in the name of reason, can they do or hope to accomplish? All else lies with the Governor. For his acts he alone is responsible, and yet in the very face and teeth of such doctrines as this, we have the Senator from Tioga getting up here and proclaiming that until commissions are issued to the Factory Inspector, the State Librarian and the Superintendent of Public Instruction that Senatorial approval to all other nominations will be withheld. Why, Mr. President, the iniquity contained in a threat of that sort is past conception. Think of it, Senators of Pennsylvania, inspired by the divinity of party hate, stooping to intermeddle with the Executive business; using the higher privilege delegated to them by the Constitution as a whip to lash the Governor into the performance of an act exclusively within his own discretion. And at the same time we have the Senator from Tioga speaking of these nominations as Governor Beaver's appointments. I deny this assertion. Governor Beaver simply nominated these men to the Senate. They are no more Governor Beaver's appointments than they are appointments of this Senate. Governor Beaver took the first step, namely, nominating. The Senate took the second step, namely, consenting. It remains to be seen whether Governor Pattison will take the third step, namely commission. And for the special information of the Senator from Tioga let me say that until this last and final step be taken, these nominations can be regarded as appointments of no man.

Upon this same subject of Senatorial intermeddling with Executive functions let me illustrate my position in this way: Suppose the Governor should so far forget himself as to send into this body a message declining to approve any further bills until he should have the assurance that this body would pass a ballot reform bill, or a bill looking to a Constitutional Convention, or a bill to equalize taxation, the three key notes to the late Democratic campaign.

What a cry of indignation would go up from Republican throats all over this body resenting this executive presumption to interfere with duties pertaining exclusively to the legislative branch of the Government. The Governor under such circumstances would be fortunate in escaping impeachment proceedings, and yet, Mr. President, but a moment's reflection will serve to convince all that the message power and the veto power of the Governor make of him much more of a legislator than the mere advisory power of the Senate makes of that body an executive.

It must be plain therefore that the Senate can no longer afford to be placed in the false position of attempting to interfere with executive functions. This is not the time or place to discuss the action or probable action of the Governor. That action is for discussion at the hustings and at the elections. There it belongs and there let it stay.

If, then, we come to the conclusion that there is no authority in law for the action of the majority in this matter we are compelled to seek for a motive to their conduct in some other direction. We find it in what the majority terms the breach of a certain contract made between Senators. We have heard much of this agreement or contract. It has been magnified until it stands now apparently an insurmountable barrier between the Senate and Governor—a block and hindrance to all future confirmations.

But when we come to analyze this agreement we find first that the Governor was no party to it whatever. That in substance it was a mere trade of confirmations between Senators on either side of this chamber; that no promise to commission was exacted by the majority, and none volanteered by the minority. That in the very nature of such things such a promise would have been impossible of performance, the Governor not being taken into the question; that all this talk about commission is an afterthought of the majority, sought to be injected into this discussion to repair their blunders. Now, I say blunders designedly because this trading of confirmations without looking after the commission can be regarded in no other light. The Republicans had on hand a batch of nominations, and they did not know what to do with them. As mere nominations without confirmation or commissions they were worthless.

The question was how to obtain the confirmations. They looked about them for a solution and suddenly a stray idea found its way among them. From the nature and character of the idea, it having an air of trade about it, it seemed most fitting that it should light on the Senator from Delaware. He had just succeeded in trading one good office for another and finally ended, as all good traders do in getting them both. So the Senator from Delaware seemed the very Joshua to lead the Republican host out of the wilderness, accordingly the Congressman from Delaware reasons with the Senator from Delaware after this fashion. "What we need is confirmations for three. Over there sits a lot of Democrats who in just twenty-four hours will also be in need of confirmations for three. That's even. Let's swap. No sooner said than done."

The Democrats turn over their consent to confirm and lo! the Red Sea opens and three Republican pilgrims to office with their luggage of nomination and confirmation pass over in safety, leaving the Republican host behind them, and thereby hangs a tale. The sea closes in again and the three pilgrims journey on their way. Before they have gone many days they come to the edge of a province through which they have no passport and on whose gates they see inscribed: "No one allowed to pass here except he have a commission from the Governor." They look back with appealing eyes to the Republican host beyond the trackless waste of waters and they dimly recognize the Senators from Delaware and Tioga gyrating with their hands and making threatening motions. But further deliverance seems impossible. Just here the narrative ends for the present. The fate of travelers will be learned in the June number of the magazine.

And now to go back again. As was said before, the Democrats did as they agreed to do and turned over the confirmations. But what about the confirmations which the Delaware trader promised to give in return? Alas for the credulity of the poor Democrats, these confirmations do not transpire.

The present position is strongly suggestive of two persons having agreed to trade horses. The one in his zeal and credulity delivered up his horse on the promise that the other would turn over his in the course of week or ten days. After the time has rolled by for the delivery and the horse is now turned over according to contract, the delinquent offers his excuse, that in the bargain to trade he forgot to mention anything about harness and now adds, "I can't work that horse you gave me without harness. If you now give me harness I will turn over the horse I agreed to."

The commissions in this case are the harness.

It seems the officers cannot work without commissions and the Republicans now come to us to procure the commissions. This, in the first place we never agreed to do. In the next place, we could not if we had. It being a matter for the Governor alone.

This agreement then being a mere agreement to trade confirmations, and having been carried out to the letter by the Democratic Senators can be of no further use in the consideration of this motion. We have sought to place the case upon higher grounds and upon these grounds this motion must either stand or fall:

Such, Mr. President and Senators of Pennsylvania, is our position and so we will endeavor to maintain it. We stand here upon the law and upon our rights secured thereby, determined that no Republican majority shall wrest those rights from our grasp. We have demanded only what is our due. This should we have and not one jot or title more or less.

For the first time in some years the Democratic minority in the Senate of Pennsylvania is in a position to demand from a Republican majority something more than the mere crusts and husks which they have been so long in the habit of receiving. Hitherto like Lazarus they have been content with the mere crumbs which fell from the table of Dives.

But in the fullness of time it has come to pass that the sovereigns have risen in their might and majesty and seated in the Executive Chair of this Commonwealth one of their own number. At the same time they have seen fit to invest the higher branch of their legislative body with a minority which is not mere clay in the hands of the majority. By the blunders of the majority, which are worse than crimes, we are now in a position to dictate terms, and taking our cue from him who was the acknowledged Cæsar of the nineteenth century, whose name I am proud to bear, those terms are "unconditional surrender."

We have pitched our tents upon the broad plane of right and justice, and will fight it out on this line, my honored friends, if it takes all summer."

We feel that we are so firmly intrenched behind the battlements of the law that even the genius of a Cooper could not raise the siege. And such a leader we are convinced you have not among you. Thus grounded in the belief that we have the law upon our side we will occupy this position until the crack of doom if need be.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

Heart-burn

Sour Stomach

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." Poisons in Cosmetics.

It seems to be the fashion for young ladies with pimples and blotches on their faces to make experiments with various cosmetics. Madame Piffypaffy advertises her foreign-named compound, composed of a combination of poisonous mineral substances that deaden and burden the delicate substances of the skin. There are no complexions like those that nature gives. The tonic, strengthening and healthgiving effects of Swift's Specific (S. S. It is the office of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) to give vigor and tone and health to the system, and in this way to give lustre to the eye and roses to the cheeks.

And Quay and Wanamaker, Too.

There are Philadelphia and Pennsylvania, behold them! Philadelphia with her City Treasurer in prison: with one bank President in prison and another a fugitive from justice; with two bank cashiers under heavy bonds on criminal charges; with from half a million to a million of city money stolen or wasted; with nearly a million of the State money involved in the robbery; with the associates of the embezzlers shivering and skulking from exposure, and with the corrupt political power that has had money and plunder as its god struggling to save itself from the flood- tide of retribution—what a fearful harvest of smutted sheaves we are gathering!—Philadelphi Times.

A Counterfeiter Arrested.

At an early hour Sunday morning secret service agents arrested Reuben Palmer, near Troy, Penna. Palmer, who is a horse dealer, and travels over the state, disposing of his stock, is charged with passing counterfeit money. For some time the country in the vicinity of Elmira, Hornellsville and Troy has been flooded with spurious coin, and recent developements led the detectives to believe that Palmer was at the bottom of it. It was finally traced to him, and his arrest quickly followed.

It has transpired that he was an assistant to the famous James Holden, a notorious counterfeiter, who has served several terms in the penitentiary, and was arrested in New York on Saturday by the secret service agents, who are now on their way to Pittsburg with their prisoner. Palmer was brought before Commissioner Mix, of Towanda, and in default of $3000 bail was committed to the Bradford county prison. The search of Palmer's premises brought to light a complete counterfeiter's outfit.

Weak Women.

The more sensitive nature of the female sex renders women much more susceptible than men to those numerous ills which spring from lack of harmony in the system. The nervous system gives way, sick headache is frequent, the appetite is lost, and other ailments peculiar to the sex cause great suffering. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for such cases, and has received the most gratifying praise for the relief it has afforded thousands of women whose very existence before taking it was only misery. It strengthens the nerves, cures sick headache and indigestion, purifies and vitalizes the blood, and gives regular and healthy action to every organ in the body.

Cured Himself of Consumption.

Dr. Wilson, a former officer in the navy, who served with Admiral Farragut during the war, is in Washington. Dr. Wilson found soon after the war that he was troubled with consumption. He sought medical advice, and he was told that he could not at best live more than six months if he should remain in this country. Dr. Wilson, who is today tall, broad shouldered, with the ruddy appearance of a man who has never known a day of sickness, says that he cured himself absolutely by what is known as the out-of-door treatment. He went first to the Cape of Good Hope and wandered about through the south of Africa. He engaged in agriculture and hunting.

He spent a good many years in the Transvaal. He would not live in a house until his lungs became thoroughly healed. He now owns the half of the island of Johanna, one of the Camore group. It is an island perhaps twenty-five miles in circumference. He has a large sugar plantation on this island, which is 900 feet above the sea level. The only other white man on the island is an Englishman, also a sugar planter. Dr. Wilson is a bachelor. He has built up a comfortable place for himself on this island. The climate is perfect and his business good. There is no place in the world so enchanting to him as this island in the south Atlantic. The climate is equable and not subject to sudden changes. His pleasure and recreation are found in hunting in the Transvaal.—Chicago Tribune.

She Caught a Burglar.

An amusing story is told of an encounter which recently took place between Mrs. George Bittlemorgan, of Liberty, Va., and a burglar. Her husband had been called away during the evening and she was left in the house alone with her two little children. Some errand called her upstairs for a few minutes, and while there she fancied she heard a slight noise in the hall below, but, it ceasing in a moment, nothing more was thought of it. When she returned to her sitting room, however, she soon noticed that the clock had stopped running.

It was an old fashioned eight day piece nearly nine feet high and very massive. Mrs. Bittlemorgan, thinking it had run down and needed winding, started toward it with the intention of getting it going again, and had nearly reached it when she saw a man about to dart out of it. As he made the movement, however, he brought the clock down on its face and upon himself as well. In trying to get out of the way he tripped and fell over a rug.

Before he could scramble from under its very considerable weight the quick-witted lady seated herself on the clock, calling at the same time to the children to run out of the house and scream for help. This speedily came, and the man, who confessed to having secreted himself in the clock for the purpose of burglarizing the house, was carried to jail, and Mrs. Bittlemorgan much complimented on her bravery and presence of mind.—Philadelphia Times.

Two Names and One Person.

A Chicago railroad man had a queer request from a conductor for a pass the other day. He asked for a pass to one point for a young lady whom he designated as Miss ——, and from there to Chicago for the same young lady as Mrs. ——, his own name. I inquired how this was, and when I received the explanation I allowed the passes. He was on his regular run, and did not care to lose a day, even though he was to be married. He had his home all nicely furnished in Chicago, and the young lady was to meet him at the station where her parents lived.

A minister was to board the train there, also, and they were to be married on board his train. Everything went off all right, and they were married according to the programme. Several presents were received by the young couple, and the passengers took up a purse, which they gave to the bride.—Exchange.

All in One Day.

George Tolbert, a young herder employed by Durnel & Spencer, rode into Mojave recently to have a tooth pulled, and on his return his horse threw him and, becoming frightened, kicked him into insensibility. When he gained consciousness he found that matches carried in his pocket had become lighted, setting fire to his clothing and severely burning one foot. Being unable to walk, it is said he crawled on his hands and knees ten miles to reach assistance. He was brought from Mojave to Tehachapi for medical treatment. It is thought amputation of the foot will be necessary.—Tehachapi Summit Sun.

Gas Explosions in British Coal Mines.

In the course of last year it appears that no fewer than 285 lives were lost by explosions of gas in the coal mines of Great Britain, and nearly all of these took place during the first six months. Of the total deaths stated it appears that 273 took place in the South Wales mining district, and in nearly every instance resulted from the use of naked lights or blasting.—London Tit-Bits.

A kind of moth or butterfly is said to have become so very troublesome and destructive in Bavaria that every possible means has been taken to destroy it. The most effective method consists of attracting the pest by means of an electric light in connection with a blow fan, which draws the insects into the suction pipe by air draught and results in millions of them being destroyed.

It is reported that Lucy Long, a little sorrel mare, ridden in many battles by General Robert E. Lee, is still living in the south and in good health, safe from the infirmities common to extreme old age.

THE LITTLE BIRD TELLS.

It's strange how little boy's mothers
Can find it all out as they do,
If a feller does anything naughty,
Or says anything that's not true!
They'll look at you just a moment,
Till your heart in your bosum swells,
And then they know all about it—
For a little bird tells!

Now where the little bird comes from
Or where the little bird goes,
If he's covered with beautiful plumage,
Or black as the king of the crows;
If his voice is as hoarse as the raven's,
Or clear as the ringing bells,
I know not; but this I am sure of—
A little bird tells!

The moment you think a thing wicked,
The moment you do a thing bad,
Or angry, or sullen, or hateful,
Get ugly, or stupid, or mad,
Or tease a dear brother or sister—
That instant your sentence he knells,
And the whole to mamma in a minute
That little bird tells!

You may be in the depths of the closet,
Where nobody sees but a mouse;
You may be all alone in the cellar,
You may be on the top of the house;
You may be in the dark and the silence
Or out in the woods and the dells—
No matter! Wherever it happens
The little bird tells!

And the only contrivance to stop him
Is just to be sure what you say—
Sure of your facts and your fancies,
Sure of your work and your play;
Be honest, be brave, and be kindly,
Be gentle and loving as well,
And then you can laugh at the stories
The little bird tells!

AS THE NORWEGIANS DO.

BY ROYAL HUBBELL.

"Well, what in the name of all that's snowed in do you call these?" exclaimed my friend Brown in new surprise.

He had lately come to the land of fur coats, snowshoes, and ice palaces, therefore saw much in our everyday life to astonish him. Often as we walked along the streets he would grasp my arm and point out things that were as old as the bluffs to me.

"Oh, they are only a pair of Norwegian skis. You will see plenty of them after the first big snowfall."

"Well, I should remark that that fellow has plenty of them already," said Brown, glancing curiously along the snowshoes, as if mentally calculating their length, which was about 10 feet. "Doesn't he glide along easily?" he continued, watching the descent of Thor as he seemed to travel without the least effort on his part.

"Oh, yes; they are bred to it. You may often see little children using skis with apparent ease."

"It must be fun," mused Brown. "Did you ever try a pair?"

"No! I, indeed!"

"Well, then, let's do so. I didn't come from Indiana to Minnesota for nothing. I'm going to do as the Norwegians do."

"But," remonstrated I, "the shoes cost considerable, and might be dangerous to our old bones."

"Oh, hang the cost! I'm here for fun, you know. And as for the danger—why, look at that little tot there moving along as gracefully as a bird. Besides, I used to be a good skater,"

"Well" said I, dubiously, "if you will, I suppose you must; your blood be upon your own head!"

"Nonsense! Just tell me where I can get the skis, and I'll show you."

I informed him, and presently he came stalking home with two pair of immense snowshoes on his shoulder, and a determined look in his eye.

His enthusiasm had quite overcome my prejudices against the things; and so, when night had come to hide any little mistakes we might make, we repaired to the moonlit orchard in the rear of my house, where there was a hill on which we could practice.

"How shall you occupy yours?" I asked.

"The man told me: 'yust put mine foot in the strap and leave 'em loose.' But I guess I haven't skated thus far through life to be fooled by a Norwegian. I'm going to tie 'em on tight, you know," he answered, chuckling at his own foresight.

"Bosh! You can follow his advice, but I shall use common sense."

"All right; I'll take the Norwegian way, then."

By this time Brown had reached the top of the hill, and had tied on his unwieldy footwear.

"Well, here goes!" he cried, and stood upon them.

And he did go, indeed.

"Whoop!" he shouted as he whizzed down the steepest place. "Get out of the way!"

I thought this rather prudent advice; for the manner in which those skis and his arms were spreading around hinted at the need of a larger State than Minnesota.

In about a second and a half my friend had acquired a speed that would have made a cyclone blush with envy, and each quarter second increased his terrific momentum. As he neared me I read in his face what he would say if he could have caught breath enough to say it: "However shall I guide these things?"

Fall! Fall! Let yourself fall!" I shouted. For I saw that he was being carried toward my young apple trees and knew he could never collide with them at that rate without breaking them, and perhaps himself also.

"Fall? Not he! In that one second of despair I saw an expression of disdain an inch thick spread over his grim visage; and I knew then that his proud spirit would much rather suffer death than defeat.

As he neared the trees I closed my eyes. He glided past my Siberian crab, and not hearing anything I took courage and opened one orb. Then, as I saw him bearing down upon two other favorites, I closed it again. But I neglected to stop my ears, and the next instant there was a crash as of the falling of a forest giant.

I dared not move, for I feared my friend was indeed killed, until I heard a muffled—a very much muffled voice saying—

"Say! help a feller out, can't you?"

I hurried down to where Brown had his head buried in the snow up to the third button on his coat. He was flat on his face, with the heels of his shoes lovingly entwined in the branches of one of my prime trees.

When my would be Norwegian was liberated, he immediately picked up his shoes and started hillward.

"Good heavens, man! You don't mean to say you are going to risk your neck again?"

Oh, the look of determination that that martyr frowned on me as he retorted—

"Did you ever know a Hoosier to give up an undertaking with the first attempt? Of course I'm going to try again!"

Seeing that argument was useless, I begged him to take a different course and steer clear of my trees. He did so, and made a most beautiful run. I feel confident that some Norwegian evil genius must have assisted chance to perform the miracle. He came stalking up the grade, flushed with the success of his second attempt, and vowing that 10 feet of skis and two feet of the "beautiful" were just the combined elements for him.

"Why, I couldn't keep away from them if I wished! I feel sure that destiny intended me to become a champion on the beauties!" And he clapped the shoes together to emphasize his outburst.

I felt so far encouraged by his meteoric success that I said I'd go up and try my own fate.

I put the shoes on; they seemed rather large, but Brown said:

"They fit you splendidly? I know you will make a good long slide the first trial."

Breathing a short but fervent prayer I made the start. If I could have stopped again, a ten dollar bill would have seemed small in my eyes for the blessed privilege. But it could not be. As I neared the steep place I heard Brown shouting encouragingly:

"That's it! That's just the way I started! You are a roaring success!"

My wind was all gone and I couldn't catch any more, although there seemed to be plenty of it all around me. I was losing my head. I caught a glimpse of trees ahead, and taking my own former advice, let myself fall. If I had it to do over again I would not sit down. A skater with a two miles a minute head of steam on has no right to sit down in business hours. Nevertheless I confidently did so, but didn't stop; I moved right along in the good old way until I reached the foot of the hill.

Just then the moon modestly went behind a cloud, and as I picked up the pieces of myself and my wardrobe I felt glad that the snow, at least, was adhesive.

I sneaked quietly into the house—for various reasons I didn't want to disturb my wife—and after arraying myself in sticking plaster and another pair of trousers, I went out again to try and dissuade Brown from further gymnastic performances.

He was waiting impatiently, not caring to waste his talent on the empty air; but as soon as I appeared he said—

"Now watch your uncle!"

"My uncle" had hardly started when his right foot insisted on going faster than its mate. The left made a little spurt once in a while, but the right had the inside track and plainly meant to keep it. At last the left seemed to grow discouraged, and ended by dropping out of the race entirely, while its mate kept on as far as possible—Brown is a tall man—and then gave one last lunge, sticking fast in the snow.

Never, outside of Barnum's, have I seen a man in such a pose—with a pair of 10 foot boards attached to him. It was wonderful! I gazed in rapt astonishment at my friend to see if he would not kiss his hand to me as do famous contortionists at the end of an act; but he just kept kept on posing.

I'm a little hard of hearing, but I think I caught the sound of a forbidden word from his lips. There may be Norwegians in the place to which he alluded, but I doubt much if there are any skis there.

Before I would untie Brown I made him promise to rest for that night; then I helped him out of his acrobatic position and we retired into the house.

He vowed that early morning should see him practicing. But the next day found us both so stiff from our unusual exercise that we were glad enough to lounge about the house and disguise our lameness by feigning to be rheumatic.

I am afraid there will yet be trouble; for every now and then Brown bursts out with:

"Wasn't that second slide of mine a daisy?"

"Yes; but how about the other two?" I ask.

"Oh, that's all right! A fellow can't make a success at anything in such a short time. I'll show you yet that I mean business."

So my wife and I are praying hourly for a thaw to come and take the snow before my Hoosier friend gets well enough to renew the battle. It's the only hope for him.

Who Invented Ice Cream.

While William M. Chase was painting a portrait of General Rutherford B. Hayes, the ex-occupant of the White House said: "I have learned that the first ice cream was the result of a sailor's ingenuity. It was on a merchant vessel, many years ago. A sailor wanting to improve his sweetened water, cooled it with ice, and in so doing accidentally froze it to the consistency of ice cream. That, sir, is the history of the discovery of ice cream." But Mr. Hayes was unable to give the name of the great unknown.

"If there is one time more than another," says an experienced married man, "when a woman should be left alone, it is when a line of clothes comes down in the mud."—[Atchison Globe.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C. June 8th, 1891

Once in a while you will find an honest and conscientious republican who does not believe that the financial policy of the administration is dedicated from Wall Street. Well, perhaps it isn't, but appearance certainly gives one that impression. For instance: Secretary Foster sends out a circular letter notifying the holders of the 4½ per cent bonds that will mature next September that they may be extended at 1 or 1½ per cent interest. As soon as that letter is made public he goes to New York, where for four days he was a guest of one of the Wall Street money kings, and now, he thinks that it will only be justice to the banks which already own about half of the $60,000,000 of these bonds and which will take all that are surrendered by other parties, to make the interest 2 per cent, which was the figure mentioned by the Wall Street men. Doesn't that look suspicious.

By the way, Secretary Foster is inclined to indulge in self glorification over the fact that he can sell a government bond bearing as low rate of interest as 2 per cent. He does not tell that these bonds are absolutely necessary to the banks which propose to take them to be used as security for their circulation. His talk in this respect has been on a par with his trying to make the public believe that the Treasury was not cramped for ready cash, and then following up his boasts with a call for $3.000,000 from the banks in which government funds are deposited.

Secretary Noble will find when he returns to duty, which will probably be this week, a very much mixed up condition of affairs in his department Assistant Secretary Bussey has whitewashed a crooked chief of a division in the Pension Office, and Assistant Secretary Chandler is gathering facts to prove Bussey's favoritism and the crookedness of the aforesaid chief, and it may end in one or the other of the Assistant Secretaries having to go. Chandler is an honest, straightforward sort of a fellow, who believes that crookedness ought to be punished no matter who are the friends of the crook; it was he who endorsed the papers in the case of young Raum "Immediate dismissal," and he only agreed to let the disposition of the case made by Bussey stand when told that such were the orders of Secretary Noble.

Another trouble for Mr. Noble will be to assist Mr. Harrison in finding another victim to take Raum's place at the head of the Pension Office, as it seems to be conceded on all sides that the head of Raum will soon find its way into the basket. Somebody has kept a record of the time Commissioner Raum has been absent since he became the head of the Pension Bureau, and it shows that during the nineteen months he has been in office he has been absent 240 days, or nearly half the time. He has simply used the office as a tender to his private business schemes, and it is not surprising that with such an example before him young Raum should have gone into the business of selling appointments to office and promotions.

The republican leaders are badly frightened at the prospect of having the Knights of Labor solidly opposed to the republican ticket in Ohio this year. It is said that the Knights of Labor through its Executive Board, which is making a fight for the removal of Capt. Meredith, chief of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, has given Mr. Harrison its ultimatun, and it is, that Meredith must be removed or every Knight of Labor in the State of Ohio will vote against the republicans at the coming gubernatorial election. Secretary Foster, who is an adept in the art of bam boozling is relied upon by Mr. Harrison to help him out of the scrape some way, but he will find it very difficult.

The talk about imigration which republicans, particularly those connected with, or hoping to be connected with the administration, are now indulging in, is all for a purpose. There was very little improvement made in our hodge podge immigration laws by the Billion dollar Congress; but it provided for a Commissioner of Immigration at $4,000 a year, which Ex-Congressman Owen, of Indiana has fallen into, and for sending a commission to Europe on a delightful summer tour for the avowed purpose of investigating the subject. Ex-Congressman Grosvenor of Ohio, who recently insulted the foreign born citizens of Wisconsin in a newspaper interview and then added cowardice to indiscretion by denying the interview, which he openly boasted of here, is a member of this commission.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

WM RADAM'S MICROBE KILLER

CURES ALL DISEASES.

It is conceded beyond a doubt that fermentation (microbes) is the cause of all disease, and we claim that no medicine can cure disease unless it has the combined qualities of a BLOOD PURIFIER, ANTISEPTIC and TONIC. This powerful combination stops fermentation and arrests decay, thereby assisting nature to cure. We will mail you circulars free, explaining the germ theory of disease.
